

Cities from the Sea

City-port System and the Waterfront as Common

4th International Workshop

Call for Application

16 - 21 April 2018 | Naples | Italy

The 4th international workshop "City from the sea" proposes a collaborative interdisciplinary experience in which the urban planning meets community psychology together with other competences like architecture, history, economics, and others. The challenge of this edition is the city-port system and the waterfront, understood as common goods.

The workshop is open to participants from different disciplines: architects, planners, psychologist, and others who are concerned with the study the nexus between sea, communities, and the city. Participants will be invited to collaborate with civil society, associations, international speakers, politicians, and businessmen.

The goal is to propose a new shared scenario for the integrated and sustainable redevelopment of three important areas of the city coast in Naples, thus addressing both sea and territories through collaboration with communities and stakeholders.

During the 6 days of the workshop, participants will take part in on site fieldwork and to lectures given by international keynote speakers. Three groups coordinated by tutors (architects and community psychology) will work daily receiving suggestions from the referees (decision makers, stakeholders, scholars, practitioners).
